Republic of San Marino. It has now been confirmed that Adrien Formaux, the French driver currently competing with team M-Sport in the World Rally Championship, will be back at Rallylegend, driving the Ford Puma Rally1 Hybrid with which he races on the WRC stage. With four podium finishes so far this season, the 29-year-old currently lies fifth in the World Rally standings. At Rallylegend 2024, Formaux will compete in the WRC category.

Malcolm Wilson said: "Rallylegend is an incredible event, to see so many passionate rally fans and so many amazing cars in one place is something to behold. I still hold fond memories of my trip there – it really is something special. It is a privilege to be able to send the latest Rally1 machinery to the event and for Adrien to come back to try and take another victory".

Adrien Fourmaux said: "Rallylegend in 2020 was my first experience of a World Rally Car, so it was a great pleasure to experience this at such a famous event like "Legend". It is going to be a pleasure to come and participate again and show all the passionate fans the Puma Rally1 car. I would like to thank the organisers of Rallylegend to help make this happen and I am really looking forward to getting back to San Marino again soon"

Both Formaux and M-Sport will be returning to Rallylegend, having competed in the "WRC" category in 2020, the terrible year of the pandemic. Formaux won, a result that was never up for discussion, paired with Renaud Jamoul aboard the M-Sport Factory Ford Fiesta WRC "Plus", which he was driving for the first time.
